Pim and the Sleeping Moon

2026-10-03

The moon smiled softly from its chimney tonight. Pim the Turtle was waiting near the roses. Mira watched him all day long.

The moon whispered secrets of stars, shimmering like snow.

Pim moved slowly, a tiny, gentle ripple.

He kept walking past the tall grass, quiet and bright.

It was warm, and the sun was falling low.

Mira held her red boots tightly and thought about them.

Pim continued to walk, a peaceful journey.

He reached a little patch of shade, soft and green.

The moon glowed even brighter now.

Pim stopped, watching a little flower bloom.

It looked like tiny pearls, all white.

Mira smiled, and she felt sleepy too.

All the warm, soft things are safe and sleeping now.
Good night, little one.

Tomorrow's storyteller will tell a sleepy squirrel story.

Pim and the Moon's Smile

2026-10-04

The moon is quiet now, you see.

The moon is a gentle friend, just like you.

Pim the turtle is slow, very slow.

He's watching the stars, happy and low.

The stars are like tiny lights,

Twinkling softly, quietly.

Pim feels a warm, soft glow,

Like a tiny, sleepy snow.

He walks to the chimney, so near,

Listening to the moon's soft cheer.

A little flower grows slow,

Just like Pim's gentle flow.

The moon smiles a tiny bit,

Like a small, peaceful fit.

It's cozy and warm tonight,

Shining softly with its light.

Sleepy, sleepy, all dreams,

Safe and warm, it always seems.
